Miss Timberlake To Reign Over Gala Festival

The vivacious allure of 17-year-old Miss Kymberly Jo Timberlake charmed the judges and the crowd in last night's 37th annual Miss Pumpkin Show Contest. Kym, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Timberlake, 980 Circle Drive, was Circleville High School's senior candidate.

This year's choice marks the second consecutive year Circleville has claimed the coveted crown.

First attendant to Miss Pumpkin Show was Miss Cindy Hamman, junior candidate from Westfall High School. Cindy is the 16-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James R. Hamman, Route 2, Williamsport.

Claiming a court rank for Amanda-Clearcreek High School for the second year in a row was the junior candidate 17-year-old Mylia Valentine. Mylia is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Valentine Jr., Route 1, Stoutsville.

The weather lent a hand to the success of the evening's spell. A velvet sky sprinkled with glittering stars spread endlessly. The chill in the air let us know its that time of year again.

Miss Pumpkin Show 1973 wore a forest green knit dress featuring long billowy sleeves and an eased skirt with black patent accessories. Her hair, the color of rich honey, fell in gleaming strands all the way to her waist. Kym is five feet seven inches tall and weighs 123 pounds.

Also attired in forest green, First Attendant Cindy Hamman chose a jacket dress with stripes of red and white against the green on the bodice. Cindy's dark shoulder-length hair was arranged in clustering curls. With smiling brown eyes, she stands five feet three inches and weighs a mere 110 pounds.

Second attendant Mylia Valentine's burgundy dress with burgundy and white plaid jacket added spark to the stage. The elegant simplicity of the brown-eyed brunette is a lovely compliment to the Pumpkin Show court. Standing five feet three inches, Mylia is also a petit 110 pounds.

The magic of the evening started at a banquet held at the Pickaway Country Club to honor the twelve candidates. Appearing at the dinner were last year's Miss Pumpkin Show, Kathy Uland; her first attendant, Marsha Lowe and her second attendant, Sandi Chambers. Each offered comments and pointers to the group of nervous and excited girls. Kathy, with her own special charm, told them to be natural and enjoy themselves.

Guests at the annual dinner sponsored by the Sigma Phi Gamma Sorority were the Aquatennial Queen Barbara Peterson and her escorts.

Ten of our candidates were detained before the banquet since the brakes failed on the vehicle bringing them to the Country Club. They were, however, ready to go when the 8 p.m. parade in their honor began.

After the Miss Pumpkin Show Parade was finished, the twelve lovely misses congregated at the W. Main St. platform for the all-important event.

Dominating the scene were judges Dave Logan of WTVN Radio Station; Ted Tuschinsky, producer of the Indiana Rose Festival and Wayne Davis, vice president and board member of Vorys Brothers and president of Eastland Vocational School.

Emcee Jim Shea announced the girls one by one wearing their school banners. The resume of each girl's credentials was read as she walked the full length of the stage before the critical eyes of the judges.

The girls then removed their school ribbons and had them replaced by number cards. Helping them behind the stage were sorority women Mrs. Janice Seymour, Mrs. Eleanor Strawser and Mrs. Ruth Gaib.

During a second trip before the judges, the twelve girls were each asked, "If you are chosen to win the crown, how would you represent the Circleville Pumpkin Show?" An excited backstage comment was "It's all happening so fast."

The judges deliberated as Ned Harden introduced the dignitaries on stage, Aquatennial Queen Barbara Peterson and her chaporones and the Minneapolis festival chairman, Mr. and Mrs. Lee Johnson.

Barbara explained how fascinating she found Pumpkin Show with an emphatic "Wow!"

Last year's Miss Pumpkin Show, Kathy Uland, related to the audience her wonderful year of travel and excitement. Ned Harden acting as chaperone for Kathy reported they had traveled approximately 10,000 miles throughout Ohio plus a trip to the Minneapolis festival.

The decision still pending, the judges recalled the girls once more before naming the winners.

As the attendants were announced, Mrs. Marlene Pritchard placed white ribbons on them and they were presented with trophies and garlands of yellow mums. Mrs. Pritchard is president of the Beta Kappa Chapter of Sigma Phi Gamma International Sorority sponsoring the contest.

Conducting her last task of her office, Kathy, dressed in a flowing white gown, crowned the radiant Kym with the rhinestone tiara.

Through a mist of ecstatic tears and a shivering smile, Kym whispered, "I'm just honored for Circleville to win twice in a row."

The new Miss Pumpkin Show will be a guest on the Bob Braun Show this morning. This will be the first of a long line of events she will be joining this coming year.

Meade Trial Set In Twin Murder Case

A sanity hearing was held 1:30 p.m. Tuesday in the Denver Meade case in Pickaway County Common Pleas Court. Meade is charged with the Jan. 20 shooting deaths of 16-year-old John Douglas Van Sickle and his mother, Charlotte Ann Van Sickle of Commercial Point.

The State of Ohio, represented by county prosecutor Richard L. Gerhardt and his assistant, James Kingsley, presented the only witness in the hearing, Dr. Alexander Cholym, staff psychiatrist at Lima State Hospital, testified Meade is presently sane and would be of assistance to his council during a trial.

After the testimony, Judge William Ammer decided Meade was able to stand trial for the two first degree murder charges pending against him.

Thomas Nagel and Donald Alexander represented Meade in Tuesday's hearing. The trial date was scheduled for Dec. 3, nearly a year after the incident.

Stoutsville Lass Is 'Little Miss'

Brenda Weaver, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Ricketts, Route 1, Stoutsville stepped center stage Wednesday afternoon, to the plaudits of a large crowd at the W. Main St. platform and received the crown of the 1973 Little Miss Pumpkin Show.

The little charmer was the selection of the judges from among 130 contestants who displayed beauty, poise and grace to the delight of the crowd. She was sponsored by Hartranft's Gas Service of Tarlton.

First attendant, selected by the judges, was Terresa Williams, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lowell Williams, Route 4. She was sponsored by Saltcreek School.

Receiving second attendant honors was Chris Fenneken, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Fenneken, 626 N. Court St., who was sponsored by the N. Court Barber Shop.

Judges for the contest, who had a monumental task in narrowing the large group down to 37 finalists before making their decision, were: Barbara Peterson, Aquatennial Queen of the Lakes; Jerry Rasor, Columbus channel 4 television personality; and Larry Hoffman, Ohio Jaycee president.

The event was sponsored by the Circleville Jaycees with Eddie Boyer chairman.

It all started promptly at 3 p.m. when the aerial bomb went off signalling the beginning of the first parade in the 1973 Pumpkin Show.

The lovely young ladies, resplendent in fancy hairdos and charming outfits, adorned the hoods of the cars as they made their way through the large crowd which lined the streets to witness the little darlings on parade.

Fine marching bands and a host of clowns added to the festivities and delighted the throng with their great music and funny antics.

Brenda was presented her trophy by

Carman Conrad, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dwight Conrad, Route 2, Clarksburg, who was selected Little Miss Pumpkin Show in 1972.

The Historical Circleville Walking Tour booklets have recently been published by the Pickaway County Historical Society under the guiding hand and artistry of local historian, Wallace Higgins. During Pumpkin Show they are available at Ye Olde Bake Shop next to the chamber of commerce on West Main Street. Thereafter they will be available at the museum or may be obtained by calling 474-3231.

One youngster fell head over heels for the Pumpkin Show displays at the YMCA building. One look at the array and he turned and tumbled head first down the steps. After a protrusion of tears, the lad realized he wasn't even hurt.

Tonight entertainer Pat Boone will perform on the W. Main St. platform following the evening parade.

Ted Jordan, the expressman on Gunsmoke and also the guy that gets gunned down by Marshal Dillon at the beginning of each episode of the all-time favorite TV western, rode in yesterday's parades. Driver of the car was his old schoolmate, Kenny Hannan. His father Ed, a native of Circleville, was also in the car, renewing acquaintances with many former friends and classmates.

Ted tells us that he spends about seven months a year filming gunsmoke. Last year he was in all but two of 28 episodes. He had a bit of sad news. Sam, the bartender, died last week.

The nephew of Ted Lewis, he has a battered top hat given him by his late uncle, and hopes to keep the memory of his famed uncle alive with a song and dance routine in his style. For the routine, he assumes the stage name of Ted E. Lewis. The E. is for father Ed.

Weather

Partly cloudy becoming sunny in the afternoon. High today, low 60s. Clear and cool tonight, low mid 40s. Sunny and warmer Friday, high near 70. Possibility of rain, 10 per cent today and zero per cent tonight and tomorrow.

Egyptian, Israeli Tanks Battle Along Suez Canal

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Israel claimed it destroyed 90 to 100 Egyptian tanks Wednesday in a fierce battle that continued into the night along the Suez Canal. Egypt said the Israelis "suffered heavy losses in tanks and armored cars."

The Israeli drive into Syria still was bogged down about 21 miles from Damascus. The Syrian front was reported quiet through the night after heavy Syrian shelling Wednesday.

Elsewhere in the Middle East crisis, the Arab oil countries pledged to cut their production 5 per cent a month to increase the cut by 5 per cent each month as long as Israel holds on to the territory it seized in the 1967 war. They hope their West European and Japanese customers will pressure the United States into ending arms shipments to Israel.

There was intense diplomatic activity in Washington and at United Nations headquarters in New York aimed at ending the fighting. But there was no apparent sign of progress.

Israel said its forces fought all day Wednesday in Sinai to "contain Egyptian counterattacks." Maj. Gen. Haim Herzog, the state radio's military commentator, said it was the "biggest armored clash in Israeli military history."

Chief of Staff David Elazar declared, "We are now calling the tune." But he added: "This is not Israel's major offensive."

The Egyptian command said fighting was continuing Wednesday night in the central sector of the Sinai front, but neither side reported any change in the battle lines two and a half to 10 miles east of the Suez Canal.

It was the second day on which the Israelis had claimed destruction of a large Arab tank force. On Tuesday they reported knocking out 105 Syrian and Iraqi tanks, while Syria that day claimed its forces destroyed 80 Israeli tanks.

Elazar said Israeli forces were "initiating the attacks on both sides" of the canal. An Israeli spokesman said the commando task force that crossed the canal Tuesday was still in Egypt, continuing to sabotage missiles and artillery. But an Egyptian general said the force had been destroyed.

Israel said its air force bombed military installations near Port Said, the Egyptian city at the northern end of the canal, and anti-aircraft missile batteries. It said 10 Egyptian planes were shot down. Egypt claimed that its air force shot down four Israeli planes in one dogfight while ground fire downed 12 Israeli planes and five helicopters. It admitted the loss of one plane.

An AP correspondent on the Syrian front said Arab artillery was continuing to blast away at Israeli columns bogged down on the road to Damascus. Elazar, however, said "everything is fine" in the northern theater of war.

A Syrian communique said that "on the northern front, our armored forces and artillery foiled an enemy attack on two of our forward positions and forced the enemy to retreat."

The communique said Syrian tanks and artillery destroyed three Israeli rocket sites, four artillery batteries, at least 40 tanks and 39 other armored vehicles. The Syrians said their air defenses knocked down five Israeli planes raiding civilian targets and one helicopter. The Israelis said they downed five Syrian aircraft.

Israel reported fighting with Jordanian tanks in Syria for the first time in the war. Tel Aviv radio said Israel now is holding 832 prisoners of war from Egypt, Syria and Iraq—96 of them officers.

On the diplomatic front, President Leopold Senghor of Senegal said Premier Golda Meir had written him restating Israel's readiness, often expressed in the past six years, to withdraw from Arab territories after the conclusion of a peace treaty that gives it "secure and recognized borders." As usual Mrs. Meir did not delineate the new boundaries Israel demands, but they are known to require retention of large chunks of occupied territory, including the southeast coast of the Sinai peninsula, the Golan Heights and the Gaza Strip.

Israeli Foreign Minister Abba Eban said at the United Nations that Israel "will certainly be ready for most substantial compromises" with the Arabs after its security is assured.

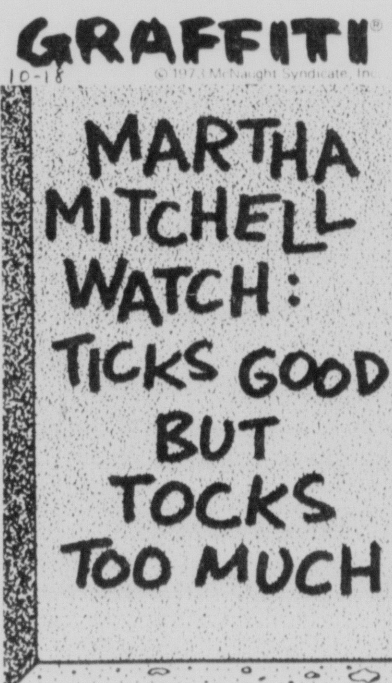

Egyptian President Anwar Sadat said Tuesday, however, that he would be willing to sit down at a U.N. peace conference only after Israel withdraws from the occupied lands.

President Nixon met Wednesday in Washington with the foreign ministers of Saudi Arabia, Algeria, Kuwait and Morocco and said later that peace "can and will be achieved." Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin was rumored to be heading up a secret mission to Cairo.

King Hussein of Jordan, speaking Wednesday for the first time since the war began, said peace could be very close or very far away, depending on Israel's attitude.

"I believe very strongly that Israel is now in a position to make up her mind and should do so without fail," he said. He said security should be based not on occupied territories and geographical barriers but on people showing "a willingness to live together and when just solutions have been found to a problem, based on honor."

Court Hears Motion; Sets Probation

Two final cases were heard in Common Pleas court yesterday.

Buddy Hatfield appeared before the court on a motion to discover evidence contained in the files. The motion was contested by prosecuting attorney Richard L. Gerhardt on behalf of the State of Ohio. Gerhardt's contention was that Hatfield was asking for more evidence than could be disclosed.

Charged with the September 1972 breaking and entering of Contractors and Industrial Supply Company, Hatfield's untimely motion was satisfied. Portions of the motion were granted while others portions were denied.

David Gillis Jr. appeared Wednesday for sentencing on a conviction of breaking and entering a coin device Gillis had previously pleaded guilty to the charge and a pre-sentence report was ordered by the court.

Having considered the evidence presented in the report, Judge William Ammer placed Gillis on probation for a period of three years and ordered him to make restitution.

Man Cited In Accident

Pickaway County Sheriff's Deputy Robert Hoover cited William Covert, 50, Lynchburg, for assured clear distance ahead in a two-car accident 9:10 a.m. Thursday on Route 159.

Ethel Toole, 70, Route 4, travelling northeast on Route 159, was preparing to make a right turn into a private drive, when Covert struck the rear of her car.

Mrs. Toole was treated and released at Berger Hospital for a right shoulder pain.

Richard Creamer, 25, Gallipolis, was treated and released from Berger Hospital for a severe headache.

Creamer, a truck driver, stopped at the roadside park north of South Bloomfield, called Sheriff's authorities stating he couldn't drive because of the headache.

Pickaway County Sheriff's Authorities identified the Columbus man killed in a car-truck accident Wednesday at Routes 22 and 104 as Edward E. Frank, 70, 320 Longview Ave., Columbus.

Pinned in the wreckage for 15 minutes, Frank died of massive head and chest injuries.

Circleville Band To Give Shocking Performance

Fans at the Circleville-Madison Plains football game Friday night are not only in store for a grid battle but will be in on a first in the state of Ohio when the Circleville marching band presents an all electric performance.

Electric communication will allow each bandsman to produce "The Big Band Sound" a different way—with transistors and tubes instead of instruments.

The experiment in electronics will take place during halftime. If it rains, it could produce some "shocking" results.

Everyone is invited to come and see "The Band of the Future."

Man Arrested On Morals Charge

Pickaway County Sheriff's Deputies Earl Kuhn and Lawrence Holt arrested John Warvel Vance, 56, Wednesday, on a morals charge involving a juvenile.

Vance reportedly went into the men's restroom at the Pickaway County Courthouse and approached a 12-year-old Grove City boy.

Vance was visiting the Pumpkin Show with a VA group.

Woman Sought With LSD-Laced Orange Juice

LAKELAND, Fla. (AP) — Eighteen persons in four cities fell ill after sampling orange juice offered by a woman who said she was doing a market survey. Police say the juice may have been spiked with hallucinogenic drugs.

All the victims were approached by the woman in central Florida shopping centers.

Ten persons were treated at a Lakeland hospital on Wednesday night and eight were admitted, two in poor condition. In St. Petersburg, three shoe store employees were treated for hallucinations and released.

Three persons in Orlando and two in Daytona Beach were listed as satisfactory after being admitted on Tuesday.

Many complained of hallucinations and all said they felt drunk with no sense of coordination, officers say.

The victims told Lakeland police they were shopping when approached by an attractive woman in her late 20s who said she was conducting market research and asked them to sample two kinds of orange juice.

"So far as we know everybody who drank the stuff has gotten sick," said Lakeland detective D. E. Peterson. "It seems to have been some hallucinogenic drug such as LSD."

In St. Petersburg, police said the woman first went to a jewelry store, but employees said they were too busy and she then went to a shoe store, where three workers drank the juice and became sick.

In Daytona Beach and Orlando, police said it was apparently the same woman who asked employees in jewelry stores to sample two brands of orange juice.

Three workers in the Orlando store and two in the Daytona Beach store were knocked unconscious by the drinks, which police said they believed contained a strong tranquilizer and hallucinogenic mixture.

"I began stumbling around and the next thing I knew I was waking up in the hospital at 3 a.m.," said Ralph Wecht, manager of Gordon's Jewelers in Orlando.

Police said the woman was described as a 5-foot-6 brunette who wore sunglasses and a wide floppy hat.

She claimed to be working for the International Survey Co. of San Francisco, which she said was conducting tests on a new brand of orange juice. Police said a check with San Francisco police showed no such firm existed.

Search For Mideast Peace Centers On U.S., Russia

WASHINGTON (AP) — The diplomatic search for an end to the Arab-Israeli war has narrowed with the United States and the Soviet Union engaged in extensive discussions over specific ideas.

These are said to center on linking a cease-fire to an overall settlement of the 25-year-old Middle East dispute.

Although there has been some progress in the talks, U.S. officials do not believe Washington and Moscow are ready to make a proposal public.

Progress in the talks were acknowledged Wednesday by State Department spokesman Robert J. McCloskey.

The negotiations are being conducted primarily by Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger and Anatoly F. Dobrynin, Soviet ambassador to the United States. Any agreement would be sent to the United Nations Security Council for ratification.

While working for an end to the fighting, the United States is facing increased pressure from the Arab nations to pull back from its support of Israel.

The Organization of Arab Petroleum Exporting Countries announced in Kuwait Wednesday they will cut production at least 5 per cent a month until Israel pulls back from territory taken in the 1967 war and restores the rights of Palestinian refugees.

State Department officials were unclear Tuesday night about what this action meant, when it would take place and exactly what was being demanded.

The announcement from Kuwait did not specifically mention the United States, but Arab diplomats indicated the oil action was aimed at forcing the United States to pressure Israel into a compromise.

The official American position as outlined by Kissinger last week is that the Nixon administration will not relent in its support of Israel in the face of a threat and will take the consequences.

Court Hears Motion; Sets Probation

Two final cases were heard in Common Pleas court yesterday.

Buddy Hatfield appeared before the court on a motion to discover evidence contained in the files. The motion was contested by prosecuting attorney Richard L. Gerhardt on behalf of the State of Ohio. Gerhardt's contention was that Hatfield was asking for more evidence than could be disclosed.

Charged with the September 1972 breaking and entering of Contractors and Industrial Supply Company, Hatfield's untimely motion was satisfied. Portions of the motion were granted while others portions were denied.

David Gillis Jr. appeared Wednesday for sentencing on a conviction of breaking and entering a coin device Gillis had previously pleaded guilty to the charge and a pre-sentence report was ordered by the court.

Having considered the evidence presented in the report, Judge William Ammer placed Gillis on probation for a period of three years and ordered him to make restitution.

Mrs. Toole was treated and released at Berger Hospital for a right shoulder pain.

Richard Creamer, 25, Gallipolis, was treated and released from Berger Hospital for a severe headache.

Creamer, a truck driver, stopped at the roadside park north of South Bloomfield, called Sheriff's authorities stating he couldn't drive because of the headache.

Pickaway County Sheriff's Authorities identified the Columbus man killed in a car-truck accident Wednesday at Routes 22 and 104 as Edward E. Frank, 70, 320 Longview Ave., Columbus.

Pinned in the wreckage for 15 minutes, Frank died of massive head and chest injuries.

Alice Neal Bakes Pie Winner

A difficult decision was made Wednesday by judges of the Bake-A-Pumpkin-Pie contest in the trailer by the First National Bank.

So many times did the judges taste the pies that the report was past deadline for Wednesday's edition of The Herald, showing what we already knew, that Pickaway County cooks know what they are doing when it comes to baking pumpkin pies.

Judges: Janet Miller and Mary Hay of Columbia Gas of Ohio Inc.; Renny Benner of Columbus and Southern Ohio Electric Co. and Ronne Zasadni of the Navy Recruiting Station, finally gave the nod to the pie baked by Alice Neal of Route 1, Amanda as the top winner of the day.

Other winners for the day are Bonnie Frazier, Route 1, Stoutsville, second; Mrs. Guy Jacobs, Route 5, third and Norma Bailey, 127 Pontious Lane, fourth.

The contest directed by Dorothy Shadley and Geneve Woodward, continues year after year to be a highlight of Pumpkin Show.

The regular meeting of Scioto parent Teacher Organization was held Oct. 1 at 8 p.m. following open house. Everyone enjoyed seeing the children's display of their work and meeting the teachers.

Invocation was given by the Rev. Ken Beals, pastor of the United Methodist Church of Commercial Point.

We were entertained by the fifth and sixth grade chorus with delightful music under the direction of Mrs. Robert Gregory.

President Raymond Yeager introduced Dr. Warner, member of the School board. He spoke to us about the bond issue to be on the November ballot.

He announced there will be a 2.43 mill for additional class rooms needed for our school in the Teays Valley district, twenty four rooms for the High school and two for each of the elementary schools.

The P.T.O. voted to support the Citizens Committee and agreed to assist them with money to help with advertising for the bond issue.

Tables were set up to receive new members and were increased by fifty new members. All parents are urged to join in the P.T.O. efforts in working for better schools.

The annual Thanksgiving euchre and games party will be held Nov. 17 at the Scioto Township School. Plenty of prizes, will be offered.

Eva Keller was surprised by several friends Sunday with a birthday brunch

18-Year-Olds Must Register

State Representative Myrl H. Shoemaker, from the 88th House District, Pickaway-Ross Counties, recently took the opportunity to observe that many of Ohio's young men are violating the Selective Service Law without knowing it by failing to register for the draft.

He pointed out that although inductions have ceased, an 18-year-old male must still register with his local draft board during a period of 30 days immediately preceeding or 30 days following his eighteenth birthday. Failure to do so is a federal crime.

Representative Shoemaker went on to say that most communities have either a local board administrative site or a registrar so that registration is not difficult.

He concluded by stating that, "in addition to registering, young men must notify their local boards of any change of address and must carry their selective service cards until their liability expires, which, for most registrants, is age 26." He strongly urged all young men of Ohio to register with their local draft board as required by law. "If any of my constituents," he said "have a question concerning selective service operations or regulations, they should contact Paul A. Corey, State Director of the Selective Service System at the United States Courthouse, 85 Marconi Blvd., Columbus, Ohio."

A Page Of Opinion

Inflation Aided

Reaction to the fighting in the Middle East by the markets—stock and commodity—has been about what was most widely expected. Their initial response was extreme nervousness.

Discussions of the fighting heard in public exhibited concern about the oil situation in the Middle East. If the flow of oil to the United States were slowed, there would no longer be any question about an acute oil shortage this winter.

Oil stocks reflected this anxiety. Contrary to what might have been expected, oil stocks have not done well recently despite higher prices, etc. There is too much government intervention in the oil business now for oil stocks to appeal to investors.

Of all commodities, oil is the most directly involved in this war. The Middle East area contains more than 50 per cent of the known oil reserves of the world.

The Immunity Ploy

By JEFFREY HART

EDITOR'S NOTE: Jeffrey Hart has discovered serious discrepancies and contradictions in John Dean's testimony before the Watergate committee. This is the first of a series of three columns dealing with that testimony.

It now seems as if John Dean testified decades ago, such is the effect upon one's consciousness of the Age of McLuhan. Too many sensational images have since pounded on our minds for us to be able to focus clearly on John Dean. Yet some of the details of Dean's bargaining for immunity are well worth studying, so crucial is his testimony for the whole Watergate affair.

It will be recalled that early in the game, John Dean and Jeb Magruder began the "race" to the prosecutors to seek immunity by giving testimony incriminating others. The May 14 issue of Newsweek, in an article based on an interview with Dean, said: "Dean sent an emissary to federal prosecutors with information implicating Magruder, Ehrlichman, Haldeman and Dean himself — the details to be forthcoming, the emissary said, in exchange for a promise of immunity."

John Dean was of course very eager to receive immunity: as a lawyer, he faced disbarment if convicted of a felony.

Now, in view of his later testimony to the Ervin committee, it is notable that in his early bargaining for immunity Dean did not play his strongest card, i.e., the supposed criminal involvement of the President. If he did have knowledge of Nixon's involvement, he would certainly have reflected that someone else might get to the prosecutors first with that sensational item. He would then try to get there first himself.

This is especially interesting in view of the fact that Dean's bargaining with the prosecutors was unsuccessful. Why, when he was unsuccessful in offering the heads of Haldeman, Ehrlichman and others, did he not offer the head that wore the crown?

Before the Ervin committee, Henry Petersen later testified that prior to April 27, when negotiations between Dean and the prosecutors broke down, Dean at no time implicated the President. Later, before the TV cameras, however, Dean claimed to know of Presidential involvement dating all the way back to September, 1972.

Before the Ervin committee, Dean knew that he had to explain his failure to discuss Presidential involvement with the prosecutors. He based his reticence on three factors: 1) the possibility of revealing "national security" matters; 2) Executive privilege; and 3) the lawyer-client privilege. All this is flimsy in the extreme. No "national security" matters were involved in Dean's testimony about Nixon before the Ervin committee. Furthermore, according to Dean's own testimony, on April 10 he had discussed the lawyer-client privilege with John Mitchell and concluded that it "would not hold water."

And, realistically speaking, can anyone suppose that — in the light of his admitted crimes — the two privileges in question would have restrained Dean in talking and bargaining with the prosecutors? He could have told them all, saved his own neck, and let them worry about the privileges if the President chose to invoke them.

From these reflections the following conclusion seems to me to follow ineluctably: when he earlier bargained with the prosecutors for immunity, it did not occur to Dean that the implication of Haldeman, Ehrlichman and others would be insufficient to gain immunity. When to his surprise this turned out to be the case, he had to break off negotiations, revise his testimony to include Nixon, and seek out the Ervin committee. As Newsweek observed on July 2, Dean's "chances now depend heavily on his making such a splash before the committee that he will be granted immunity... it is patently in his interest to tell his story spectacularly."

It further follows that his testimony concerning Nixon is highly suspect. He had every motive for providing it earlier to the prosecutors. Is the conclusion not probable that Dean "acquired" the "evidence" regarding Nixon between his earlier bargaining with the prosecutors and his later appearance before the TV cameras?

According To Boyle

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — About the lowest form of life in the average business office is the character almost everyone calls "the moocher."

Everyone looks down on him, and more bad things are said about him to his face than are said about the boss behind the boss' back.

Every office, no matter how small, has at least one moocher, and larger offices may have several. But they are all united by a common philosophy: They want something for nothing and, if possible, they want to mooch it from you. Here are a few familiar types of white-collar moochers you may have noticed in your office:

"Merton the Muncher" — Merton never buys a lunch or brings one. He depends upon the largesse of others for his midday calories. At lunchtime he goes from desk to desk, his eyes mournful, his tongue hanging out like a collie's, and stares in turn at his fellow workers until they toss him a tidbit from their brown bags: Everyone despises Merton, but they can't turn him down. He has gained 30 pounds in 10 years, and the company doctor tells him he'll have to go on a diet or die. Merton's probable choice: death before diet.

"Nelson Nicotine" — Twenty years ago Nelson decided to quit buying cigarettes in hopes of breaking his one-pack-a-day habit. He decided he'd smoke only those he could borrow. Now, after two decades of mooching, he is smoking three packs of cigarettes a day — and has an ominous-sounding cough.

"Cash and Carry Phil" — Phil only mooches money. He tells you it's a loan. "I'll pay you back next Friday and move you up a paragraph in my will — but he never keeps his word. What does Phil do with all the dough he mooches? The office gossip is that (1) he spends it on a love nest, or (2) he is paying blackmail to the boss' spinster secretary who caught Phil stealing from the petty cash fund when he was only an office boy.

"Kermit the Connoisseur" — This neurotic nut is the one-of-a-kind moocher. He may mooch only paper clips, pencils, ballpoint pens, or paper pads. But whatever it is, if you ever could see the inside of his desk, you'd find it overflowing with the stuff.

"Minnie the Moocher" — She takes two hours to put her makeup on in the morning, and she regards herself as the office femme fatale. Minnie's goal is to live on borrowed love, and she tries to do this by attempting to mooch either the husband or boy friend of every other girl in the office. Minnie gets a lot of anonymous threats over her home phone — all from women whose voices she thinks she recognizes. She regards the threats as a form of flattery to her prowess.

That leaves one kind of officer moocher unclassified. Who is he? If you don't know, ask your best friend — but don't be offended if he gives a frank answer.

Business World

By JOHN CUNIFF

AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Women's cosmetics and fragrances have succeeded over the centuries not only for what they do, if anything, but because of their allure and ambience and the hope, the suggestion, the promise they offer.

Their advertising reflects this, much of it being based on the implicit benefits of pleasing men, catching and keeping men, maintaining or achieving social acceptability, and attaining personal well-being.

And, said a practicing psychologist and researcher this week, that puts cosmetic advertisers on the most-wanted list of the Federal Trade Commission, which has taken the position that ad claims must be documented.

But how do you document a fragrance ad that states simply, "And suddenly nothing is the same," or a facial cream ad that contains the promise of "smoothing away the years?"

The FTC doesn't even have a most-wanted list, of course, and it hasn't indicated any unusual interest in cosmetics. But Dr. Joseph Smith told a meeting of cosmetics people that if the FTC were to act, cosmetics would be caught in a gooey situation.

Smith is a market researcher who heads the firm of Oxtoby-Smith Inc. A sadomic humorist, he titled his talk "An Awful Shadow Floats amongst Us," which is a ghastly vision for cosmetics people.

(Would Percy Shelley by chance have dreamed that these words, somewhat edited from his poem, "A Hymn To Intellectual Beauty," would ever be so used?)

Said Smith, who has often knocked and joined heads with the FTC:

"The cosmetics industry is distinctly vulnerable to attack — attack on the grounds that its communications to consumers are deceptive, unfair, and/or misleading." Not that they are, he said, but can they be defended?

To date the FTC has taken on the automotive industry, tires, air conditioners, television sets, foods, hearing aids, detergents, analgesics, toothpastes, cold remedies and the like. But it hasn't confronted cosmetics.

The FTC doesn't have to prove the ads false, said Smith. Instead, the advertiser must be able to demonstrate and document their truthfulness.

This might be a cut-and-dried matter with tires, but with the ad says, as does a fragrance ad now circulating, "And suddenly nothing is the same," you've got problems.

When a cosmetics ad shows a svelte society matron in a touched-up full-page portrait, does it suggest to the reader that she can be the same if she uses the product? Is it implied?

The commission's mandate is to prevent misleading ads rather than to prevent women from buying products. Its goal is to prevent the use of deception to obtain an advantage over competition and the customer.

In previous cases, however, it has asked for material proof, scientific evidence and the like. But what of the intangibles? If a woman believes the product helps, isn't that evidence of value? And if she believes, maybe the dream will come true — no? And doesn't the ad make the dream believable?

Smith told the cosmetics people that the readers of cosmetics ads take their message from: 1. The overt communication; 2. The implicit and symbolic carriers of meaning, their situations, dress, the colors used, the music; 3. The perceptive set the reader or viewer has — that is, knowledge and attitudes.

It means, he said, that advertisers must learn themselves just what their ads are saying, "not what you want them to say and not what you think they're saying, but what they are saying."

And next, he suggested, cosmetic advertisers must convince the pragmatists of the regulatory agencies that not all important values are material, "that benefits cannot be measured only in graduated beakers, but also reside in feelings and emotions."

Inflation Aided

Reaction to the fighting in the Middle East by the markets—stock and commodity—has been about what was most widely expected. Their initial response was extreme nervousness.

Discussions of the fighting heard in public exhibited concern about the oil situation in the Middle East. If the flow of oil to the United States were slowed, there would no longer be any question about an acute oil shortage this winter.

Oil stocks reflected this anxiety. Contrary to what might have been expected, oil stocks have not done well recently despite higher prices, etc. There is too much government intervention in the oil business now for oil stocks to appeal to investors.

Of all commodities, oil is the most directly involved in this war. The Middle East area contains more than 50 per cent of the known oil reserves of the world.

The fighting cannot have the effect of slowing inflation, which is world-wide. Inflation thrives on war, and the wildest inflation frequently is felt far distant from the fighting.

(Would Percy Shelley by chance have dreamed that these words, somewhat edited from his poem, "A Hymn To Intellectual Beauty," would ever be so used?)

Said Smith, who has often knocked and joined heads with the FTC:

"The cosmetics industry is distinctly vulnerable to attack — attack on the grounds that its communications to consumers are deceptive, unfair, and/or misleading." Not that they are, he said, but can they be defended?

To date the FTC has taken on the automotive industry, tires, air conditioners, television sets, foods, hearing aids, detergents, analgesics, toothpastes, cold remedies and the like. But it hasn't confronted cosmetics.

The FTC doesn't have to prove the ads false, said Smith. Instead, the advertiser must be able to demonstrate and document their truthfulness.

This might be a cut-and-dried matter with tires, but when the ad says, as does a fragrance ad now circulating, "And suddenly nothing is the same," you've got problems.

When a cosmetics ad shows a svelte society matron in a touched-up full-page portrait, does it suggest to the reader that she can be the same if she uses the product? Is it implied?

The commission's mandate is to prevent misleading ads rather than to prevent women from buying products. Its goal is to prevent the use of deception to obtain an advantage over competition and the customer.

In previous cases, however, it has asked for material proof, scientific evidence and the like. But what of the intangibles? If a woman believes the product helps, isn't that evidence of value? And if she believes, maybe the dream will come true — no? And doesn't the ad make the dream believable?

Smith told the cosmetics people that the readers of cosmetics ads take their message from: 1. The overt communication; 2. The implicit and symbolic carriers of meaning, their situations, dress, the colors used, the music; 3. The perceptive set the reader or viewer has — that is, knowledge and attitudes.

It means, he said, that advertisers must learn themselves just what their ads are saying, "not what you want them to say and not what you think they're saying, but what they are saying."

And next, he suggested, cosmetic advertisers must convince the pragmatists of the regulatory agencies that not all important values are material, that benefits cannot be measured only in graduated beakers, but also reside in feelings and emotions.

They'll Do It Every Time

Sneek-A-Peek

AT BOOKS IN THE CHILDREN'S LIBRARY

What will the kids do on the rainy weekends ahead after Pumpkin Show? Why not let them give a monster party? Jean and Paul Frame have a new book, "How to Give a Party", for children nine years and older. Detailed information on the construction of games, centerpieces and table decorations are given along with a check list to get things organized. Profusely illustrated with clear drawings and patterns, every step in party giving is explored. Menus and games are included.

A ready made metal or plastic doll house doesn't leave much to the imagination. Betsy Pflug's "Boxed - In Doll Houses" shows how to build simple ones. Beginning with the corrugated cardboard box, all materials are easily available and include styrofoam, plastic containers, egg cups and match boxes. The author has planned for every emergency. She even suggests the bathroom floor be of waterproof vinyl paper to protect against water spills! Bright and colorful, it suggests a great Christmas present.

The 70 may be the decade of crafts. A good beginning for a girl might be with needlepoint. But, "Fun With Needlepoint" by Hope Hanley has pizzazz! No tedious little bouquets of roses for this artist. Instead, she has bright designs graded for difficulty from 3x4 pincushions for the novice to stuffed toys. Step by step instructions include the selection of wool, all necessary stitches and planning your own design.

For younger children, James Razzi has written "Simply Fun", and it is! Tricks and games will entertain during quiet times and for large gatherings. For girls there is a charm bracelet of odds and ends. And there are walking faces and castles for small boys. These are really simple ideas which can be completed in one sitting. Also, easy to make puppets are featured in "Finger Puppets" by Laura Ross. Once the glove puppets, styrofoam puppets and thumbelina puppets are made, scripts and songs are included to create a play.

And, speaking of plays, Syd Hoff, the cartoonist, has a new book, "Giants and Other Plays for Children." There are no scripts to learn, only five little stories with a few lines and impromptu costumes that need no sewing. Just the thing for a Saturday matinee in the garage.

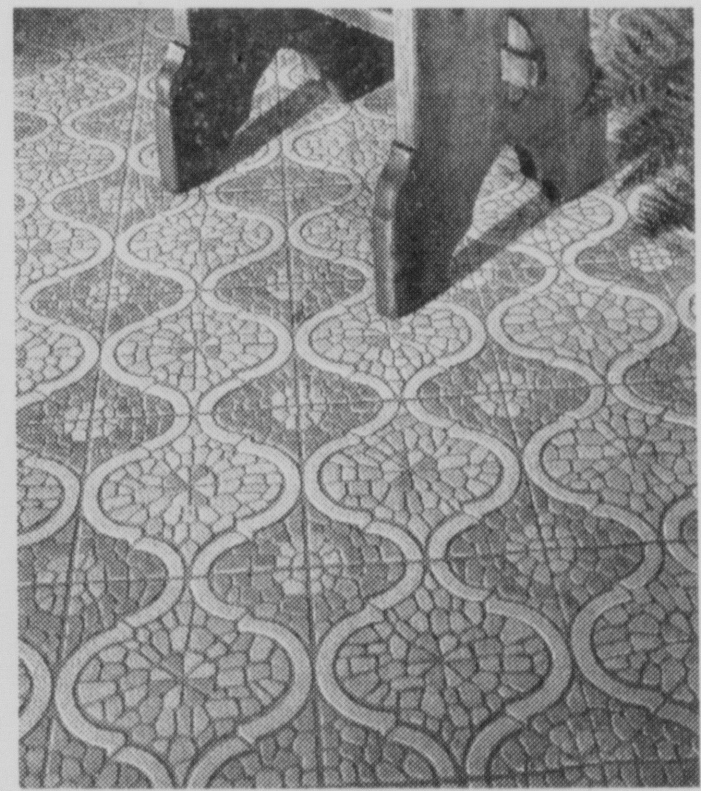

Something else for the garage might be a magic show. Optical illusions, escape tricks, mind reading and card tricks will provide young people with a varied repertoire. You won't have to buy any props and the family can join in as the audience.

For more fun, the Sneek - A - Peek Story Hour for the pre-schoolers will begin Tuesday, October 23rd at 10:30 a.m. Every succeeding Tuesday for the next six weeks, games and stories will be planned for the young children and their mothers. Marilyn Orr, who specializes in interior design will be the first speaker. Remember to call and register.

Senior Citizens
Visit Shawnee
Lodge And Park

The last regularly scheduled tour of the season for Pickaway Senior Center members was Oct. 10th. Leaving the Center at 10 a.m. their destination was Shawnee Lodge in the State Park near Portsmouth. There they had lunch in the colorful dining room. There were several other busloads of senior citizens from Mansfield and the Cincinnati area also.

After lunch they viewed the lovely facilities of the lodge and the surrounding areas, and then headed for home over a different route. The fall foliage was beautiful and there were many breath-taking vistas on the way home.

Mrs. Fannie Brooks was the tour guide for the day. Accompanying her were: Bart Deming, Pauline Jones, Betty Goeller, Bernice Lutz, Almeda Hill, Hazel Harvey, Galina Ivascu, Eva Heffelfinger, Jennie Eccard, Eunice Shy, Catherine Hawks, Faye Fausnaugh, Bess Good.

Louise Heine, Lucille Scott, Ellen Camp, Luella Lape, Isabella Badger, Alice Scotchorn, Margaret Ater, Nellie Oldaker, Dorothy Smith, Grace Brown, Alva Rinehart, Blanche Kerns, Helen Newlon, Margaret Shane, Alton Stonerock, Adella Huffman, Jenny Hoffman and Dorothy List. Mary Besanson, Mildred Koch, Bryon Downs, Frances Davis.

News Of Interest To Women

6 The Circleville Herald, Thursday October 18, 1973

'Ecumenical Missions'
Rebekah Circle Program

The October meeting of Rebekah Circle of United Methodist Women was held recently in the parlor of the Community United Methodist Church. Jean Mills and Elmora Wilson were responsible for the program and devotions. The subject for the evening was "Ecumenical Missions."

Guest speaker for the evening, introduced by Elnora Wilson, was Twyla Lorentz from the Senior Citizens' Center. She told of the history of the Center and how it started and has grown until it now has 334 members. She told of the many activities and crafts in which the members participate, and of their sincere efforts to earn much needed finances to keep the Center going.

She told of the many services rendered by the members to help others. She explained some of the things they plan for the future. The hospitality center for all Senior Citizens, both local and visiting, is to be in the basement of the Community United Methodist Church, where they will also have articles for sale. A question and answer session was held.

Jean Mills read from Paul's letter to the Corinthians 2: 1-8.

Chairman, Frances Rose, conducted the business meeting. She announced the Churchmanship Dinner to be held Nov. 18. Reservations should be in to Diane Sutton or Mrs. Jacobs by Nov. 6th.

The program next month is to be under the direction of Joan Dawson and Arlene Harte. Cards are to be sent to the sick and those in need of encouragement. New membership cards

American Indians
Circle Program

Indians was the subject of the program for the recent meeting of Circle 1, Good Shepherd United Methodist Church, in the home of Sue Roan, E. Union St., attended by 13 members.

The meeting was opened with Eileen Bowman reading the poem "I Believe" and a prayer.

Patty Kirkwood, program leader, used as her topic title "Dominion Of The Great Spirit." She told of the American Indian's way of life, health, education and employment, and said we were all created equal.

Members sang "This Is My Father's World" and Rosalie Cullums read the Indian version of the 23rd Psalm. The meeting closed with the circle members praying "The Lord's Prayer."

The November meeting will be hosted by Mary E. Radcliffe and the program leader will be Blanche Kerns.

Meeting Scheduled
By Monday Club

Monday Club will meet 8 p.m. Oct. 22nd in the meeting room of Pickaway County Historical Society.

Mrs. Bishop Given will be the speaker and Mrs. George Burns, reporter for the annual guest night.

were distributed using the new name "United Methodist Women."

Officers for the new year are Frances Rose, chairman; Garnet Ridgway, secretary; Barbara Wilson, treasurer, and Della Wertman, program chairman.

Refreshments were served by Jane Shank and Gertrude Sanborn. Those present were Della Wertman, Mable Sowers, Jean Mills, Jane Shank, Gertrude Sanborn, Twyla Lorentz, Garnet Ridgway, Elnora Wilson and Jeri Smith.

Five Points WCTU
Meets In Church

"Preparation For Service" was the theme of the Five Point Women's Christian Temperance Union meeting Wednesday afternoon in the basement of Five Points United Methodist Church.

Mrs. Francis Furniss, president, opened the meeting by leading in pledges to the American, Christian and Temperance flags and singing "A Charge To Keep I Have." Mrs. Lloyd Neff read scripture from James 4: 7-14 followed by meditations and prayer.

Roll call was answered by members repeating their favorite Bible verse. Mrs. Herman Porter read an article pertaining to her projection methods department. Mrs. Furniss explained the home protection department. Mrs. E. L. Sheets read "Hostess Fanfare" and Mrs. Arthur Winfough read "Beatitudes For Mothers." Mrs. Lloyd Neff read an article, "Young Mothers Must Enlist."

Several cards of cheer were signed to be sent to friends who are ill. The meeting was closed with a friendship circle and the benediction.

The November meeting will be in the home of Mrs. Lloyd Neff.

Guild 44 Workshop
Planned For Monday

Members of Berger Hospital Guild 44 will work on bazaar projects during their 8 p.m. Monday meeting in the home of Mrs. Richard Theis, 574 Oakland Terrace.

'Ecumenical Missions' Rebekah Circle Program

The October meeting of Rebekah Circle of United Methodist Women was held recently in the parlor of the Community United Methodist Church. Jean Mills and Elmore Wilson were responsible for the program and devotions. The subject for the evening was "Ecumenical Missions."

Guest speaker for the evening, introduced by Elnora Wilson, was Twyla Lorentz from the Senior Citizens' Center. She told of the history of the Center and how it started and has grown until it now has 334 members. She told of the many activities and crafts in which the members participate, and of their sincere efforts to earn much needed finances to keep the Center going.

She told of the many services rendered by the members to help others. She explained some of the things they plan for the future. The hospitality center for all Senior Citizens, both local and visiting, is to be in the basement of the Community United Methodist Church, where they will also have articles for sale. A question and answer session was held.

Jean Mills read from Paul's letter to the Corinthians 2: 1-8.

Chairman, Frances Rose, conducted the business meeting. She announced the Churchmanship Dinner to be held Nov. 18. Reservations should be in to Diane Sutton or Mrs. Jacobs by Nov. 6th.

The program next month is to be under the direction of Joan Dawson and Arlene Harte. Cards are to be sent to the sick and those in need of encouragement. New membership cards

American Indians Circle Program

Indians was the subject of the program for the recent meeting of Circle 1, Good Shepherd United Methodist Church, in the home of Sue Roan, E. Union St., attended by 13 members.

The meeting was opened with Eileen Bowman reading the poem "I Believe" and a prayer.

Patty Kirkwood, program leader, used as her topic title "Dominion Of The Great Spirit." She told of the American Indian's way of life, health, education and employment, and said we were all created equal.

Members sang "This Is My Father's World" and Rosalie Cullums read the Indian version of the 23rd Psalm. The meeting closed with the circle members praying "The Lord's Prayer."

The November meeting will be hosted by Mary E. Radcliffe and the program leader will be Blanche Kerns.

Meeting Scheduled By Monday Club

Monday Club will meet 8 p.m. Oct. 22nd in the meeting room of Pickaway County Historical Society.

Ford Bridge To Congress Worthless?

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Gerald R. Ford hopes to make his vice presidency a bridge between Congress and the White House, but history puts long odds against him.
That is a mission vice presidents have attempted before, usually without success.
Ford, the House Republican leader, is a man of Congress. House and Senate applauded his vice presidential nomination and signaled virtually certain confirmation.
He will take with him the friendships and knowledge gained in 25 years on Capitol Hill. His would seem to be ideal credentials for an administration lobbyist.
But other men with similar backgrounds have found it doesn't work that way. Even the late Lyndon B. Johnson, master of the Senate when he was leader of its Democratic majority, found himself without congressional clout as vice president.
The barrier has been one of institutional loyalties. And members of the Senate and House tend to be particularly wary of intrusions on their independence by a former colleague who has joined the executive branch.
One administration aide described the view in Congress this way:
"The minute a man takes that oath and lifts his hand off the Bible, he's gone. He's part of another branch of government."
Ford has said that as vice president he hopes to forge compromises and reduce friction between the Democratic Congress and the Republican administration. He said he might try to work at the committee level, dealing directly with the chairmen of the House and Senate panels that draft legislation.

He acknowledged that would be "a delicate operation" for a vice president.
A White House official said Ford undoubtedly will be helpful in dealing with Congress, particularly in shaping proposals, planning strategy and maintaining contacts with members.
But the official said he doubted any vice president could accomplish much by lobbying in committee or on the floor of Congress.
In nominating Ford, President Nixon said he needed a vice president who could work with members of both parties in Congress "for those programs of the administration which we consider are vital in the national interest."

That is a matter of persuasion, and a Nixon aide said it will be a sensitive one. As House Republican leader, Ford has marshaled a minority to uphold Nixon vetoes and battle legislation the administration opposed.
On confirmation, he moves across the Capitol to the Senate, where vice presidents can preside and cast tie-breaking votes.
That was Johnson's base, yet when he took over the vice presidency, he found himself rebuffed by old colleagues. Later, as President, Johnson was a persuasive promoter of domestic legislation. That was not the case during his time as vice president.

Hubert H. Humphrey, now a senator again, moved from the Senate to the vice presidency. He did his lobbying carefully and offstage, often at small, private luncheons, not on the Senate floor.
Then came Spiro T. Agnew. Early on, he tried lobbying on the Senate floor for votes on administration measures. Not only did it fail, it was counterproductive.
On a tax bill, Agnew approached former Republican Sen. Len B. Jordan of Idaho on the Senate floor to ask how he would vote.
"Mr. Vice President, don't twist my arm," Jordan said. Later, Jordan told Republican colleagues that any time he was pressured on the Senate floor by anyone representing the administration, he would vote the other way.
There were other setbacks, and Agnew gave up his overt attempts at lobbying. He seldom appeared in the Senate during his latter years in the job he resigned a week ago.
"It got so we had a hard time getting him up there to break a damn tie vote," an administration aide said.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Gerald R. Ford hopes to make his vice presidency a bridge between Congress and the White House, but history puts long odds against him.

That is a mission vice presidents have attempted before, usually without success.

Ford, the House Republican leader, is a man of Congress. House and Senate applauded his vice presidential nomination and signaled virtually certain confirmation.

He will take with him the friendships and knowledge gained in 25 years on Capitol Hill. His would seem to be ideal credentials for an administration lobbyist.

But other men with similar backgrounds have found it doesn't work that way. Even the late Lyndon B. Johnson, master of the Senate when he was leader of its Democratic majority, found himself without congressional clout as vice president.

The barrier has been one of institutional loyalties. And members of the Senate and House tend to be particularly wary of intrusions on their independence by a former colleague who has joined the executive branch.

One administration aide described the view in Congress this way:

"The minute a man takes that oath and lifts his hand off the Bible, he's gone. He's part of another branch of government."

Ford has said that as vice president he hopes to forge compromises and reduce friction between the Democratic Congress and the Republican administration. He said he might try to work at the committee level, dealing directly with the chairmen of the House and Senate panels that draft legislation.

He acknowledged that would be "a delicate operation" for a vice president.

A White House official said Ford undoubtedly will be helpful in dealing with Congress, particularly in shaping proposals, planning strategy and maintaining contacts with members.

But the official said he doubted any vice president could accomplish much by lobbying in committee or on the floor of Congress.

In nominating Ford, President Nixon said he needed a vice president who could work with members of both parties in Congress "for those programs of the administration which we consider are vital in the national interest."

That is a matter of persuasion, and a Nixon aide said it will be a sensitive one. As House Republican leader, Ford has marshaled a minority to uphold Nixon vetoes and battle legislation the administration opposed.

On confirmation, he moves across the Capitol to the Senate, where vice presidents can preside and cast tie-breaking votes.

That was Johnson's base, yet when he took over the vice presidency, he found himself rebuffed by old colleagues. Later, as President, Johnson was a persuasive promoter of domestic legislation. That was not the case during his time as vice president.

Hubert H. Humphrey, now a senator again, moved from the Senate to the vice presidency. He did his lobbying carefully and offstage, often at small, private luncheons, not on the Senate floor.

Then came Spiro T. Agnew. Early on, he tried lobbying on the Senate floor for votes on administration measures. Not only did it fail, it was counterproductive.

On a tax bill, Agnew approached former Republican Sen. Len B. Jordan of Idaho on the Senate floor to ask how he would vote.

"Mr. Vice President, don't twist my arm," Jordan said. Later, Jordan told Republican colleagues that any time he was pressured on the Senate floor by anyone representing the administration, he would vote the other way.

There were other setbacks, and Agnew gave up his overt attempts at lobbying. He seldom appeared in the Senate during his latter years in the job he resigned a week ago.

"It got so we had a hard time getting him up there to break a damn tie vote," an administration aide said.

Kentucky UFO Sightings Rise

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Policemen and broadcasters in Kentucky received a stream of reports of mysterious lights in the sky Wednesday night and some said they saw the unidentified flying objects themselves.

One of the objects, which landed in a back yard in Franklin, was discovered to be strictly terrestrial in origin.

Lexington police said they received 25 or 30 calls about UFOs, and one officer said he saw two of them, one briefly and the other for about two minutes.

He said the one he saw best was a half-circle with white and red lights that appeared over the southeastern part of the city.

At radio station WLAP in Lexington, broadcaster Cliff Eaton reported sighting an orange ball in the sky, which moved slowly from west to east, then stopped, gave off red sparks and faded away.

Ed Alan of WCTT in Corbin said he used a 50-power telescope to watch a

UFO several miles away, which he estimated was 75 to 100 feet in diameter.

Another broadcaster, Mike Majors of WCDS in Glasgow, said he and four others saw a silver object like a star which moved across the Barren County skies for three minutes, "faster than any plane," then disappeared.

Flying lights and objects were also reported seen between Russellville and Auburn in Southwest Kentucky; at Danville, Richmond and Irvine in Central Kentucky, and at Pikeville in Eastern Kentucky.

The object that fell from the sky at Franklin in Southwest Kentucky's Simpson County turned out to be homemade.

Bert Starks said he saw it fairly high in the sky and watched as it descended into his back yard.

He and Franklin Patrolman Wayne Durham investigated and found it to be a balloon made from a blue plastic laundry bag, with candles suspended beneath to heat the air in the bag and provide lift.

Pleasant Weather Covers Most Of United States

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Pleasant weather settled over most of the nation today, bringing generally clear skies, light winds and mild temperatures.

Showers dampened portions of the Great Lakes and Florida. A frontal system entering the Northwest brought scattered showers to coastal sections of Washington.

Tropical storm Gilda gained strength as she moved toward the eastern tip of Cuba. Forecasters expected the storm to pose no threat to the United States on its present north-eastward course.

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Policemen and broadcasters in Kentucky received a stream of reports of mysterious lights in the sky Wednesday night and some said they saw the unidentified flying objects themselves.

One of the objects, which landed in a back yard in Franklin, was discovered to be strictly terrestrial in origin.

Lexington police said they received 25 or 30 calls about UFOs, and one officer said he saw two of them, one briefly and the other for about two minutes.

He said the one he saw best was a half-circle with white and red lights that appeared over the southeastern part of the city.

At radio station WLAP in Lexington, broadcaster Cliff Eaton reported sighting an orange ball in the sky, which moved slowly from west to east, then stopped, gave off red sparks and faded away.

Ed Alan of WCTT in Corbin said he used a 50-power telescope to watch a

UFO several miles away, which he estimated was 75 to 100 feet in diameter.

Another broadcaster, Mike Majors of WCDS in Glasgow, said he and four others saw a silver object like a star which moved across the Barren County skies for three minutes, "faster than any plane," then disappeared.

Flying lights and objects were also reported seen between Russellville and Auburn in Southwest Kentucky; at Danville, Richmond and Irvine in Central Kentucky, and at Pikeville in Eastern Kentucky.

The object that fell from the sky at Franklin in Southwest Kentucky's Simpson County turned out to be homemade.

Berl Starks said he saw it fairly high in the sky and watched as it descended into his back yard.

He and Franklin Patrolman Wayne Durham investigated and found it to be a balloon made from a blue plastic laundry bag, with candles suspended beneath to heat the air in the bag and provide lift.

Gilligan Notes Tax Decline

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Gov. John Gilligan said Wednesday that Ohio's property taxes declined in 1973 for the first time in 36 years. He attributed the drop to relief provided by the state income tax.

The income tax law was enacted in 1971. Gilligan said a minimal .3 per cent statewide property tax increase in 1972 and the 3 per cent decline in 1973 resulted from the law's 10 per cent property tax rollback and the homestead exemption for homeowners age 65 and over.

Gilligan said the 3 per cent drop "marks the first time such taxes in Ohio have not increased since . . . the depression years of the 1930s."

He stressed that taxes in some districts may have increased due to voter approval of additional millage and mandatory reappraisals in some counties, but added: "The statewide growth stopped its upward spiral."

Gilligan noted that during his three years in office property taxes have risen only 4 per cent, while during the eight years of the previous administration they went up 78 per cent.

Nixon Winner In Tapes Fight

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon had his first favorable decision today in his legal battle to withhold the White House tapes from the Senate Watergate committee and the special Watergate prosecutor.

U.S. District Court Judge John J. Sirica threw out Wednesday the Senate committee's request for a civil judgment affirming its right to demand the tapes from the President.

In his ruling, Sirica said the committee had failed to obtain authorization for suing the President. He said he was not making any judgment on the legal merits of the committee's case.

A committee spokesman said the decision probably would be appealed.

But Nixon still faces the formidable challenge of special prosecutor Archibald Cox's effort to obtain nine presidential tapes for the federal grand jury investigation of the Watergate break-in and cover-up.

In that case, Sirica ordered the President to give him the nine tapes Cox had subpoenaed. The judge said that only if he listened to the tapes could he determine if the President had a valid claim for keeping them secret.

Last Friday, the U.S. Court of Appeals upheld Sirica's ruling.

The President has until Friday to take his appeal to the Supreme Court, a move he is regarded as virtually certain to make.

The committee subpoenaed five tapes last July 23, the same day Cox subpoenaed nine. Three days later the President notified both parties that he would not comply with their subpoenas.

The President has contended that because the three branches of government are coequal and independent under the Constitution, neither a congressional committee nor a judge could force him to obey an order.

Cox had argued that in the case of evidence of criminal activity, no man, not even a president, has a right to withhold it from a grand jury.

Sheriff Seizes Automobile Parts

CHARDON, Ohio (AP) — Geauga County Sheriff Carl E. Henderson said a raid on a Newbury Township barn this week seized about $40,000 in stolen automobile parts.

He said the owner of the property, Earl Roark, 49, was charged with possession of stolen property and removing parts from stolen vehicles. He said a grand jury would be asked to indict a number of other persons.

Judge Upholds State Income Tax Regulation

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A provision of the 1971 Ohio income tax law requiring that married couples who file joint federal income tax returns also file joint state returns has been upheld by Common Pleas Judge Frederick Williams.

Williams ruled that husbands and wives who want to be treated as an economic unit by the federal government "cannot properly claim a deprivation of constitutional rights because they are treated similarly for state income tax purposes."

The ruling was on a suit filed in Franklin County Common Pleas Court challenging the constitutionality of the law.

A similar case is pending before the 6th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Cincinnati.

Firestone Workers Strike At 7 Plants

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Approximately 3,400 rubber workers struck seven Firestone Tire & Rubber Co. plants at Akron overnight after rejecting a supplemental contract.

Officials of United Rubber Workers Local 7 said the agreement was rejected late Wednesday by a vote of 1,403 to 1,000.

Revised Tigers Host Madison Plains Friday

It will be parents night Friday at Tiger Field when Circleville hosts the Golden Eagles of Madison Plains in a South Central Ohio League clash. Anyone attending the contest had better make sure they have a program as Circleville coaches are making some changes in an attempt to get more consistency and better overall performance into the lineup. "I feel when things are not going well you must make some changes in order to rectify the situation or you're not doing a coaching job," Circleville coach Larry Cook stated. "We have to get back to playing consistent football for four quarters and eliminate the mental mistakes which have plagued us in our earlier games," Cook commented. It has been an up and down year for the Tigers who opened the season with a big win over Grove City, dropped contest to Teays Valley and Athens, beat Greenfield and faltered and fell to Wilmington and Miami Trace in their last two outings, leaving the Red and Black with a 1-2 mark in league play and a 2-4 record overall.

Madison Plains is coming to Roundtown with a 1-1 mark in league play and a 1-5 record for the season. However, the Golden Eagles are an improving club and put their first win of the season in the book last week with a 14-8 victory over Greenfield.

The Eagles are a big, strong team and like to play ball control football. They will operate from a power I, wing T and slot I with the fullback, Smith, and wingback, Tope, providing the running attack.

Defensively, the Eagles will operate from a 5-2 monster with an inside game from the tackles and middle guard. They also may go into 6-2-3 and 6-3-2 with zone pass coverage.

Starting on the offensive unit for Madison Plains will be: Oyer, 180-pound, and Stump, 185-pound, at the

quarterback; Eddy Richter or Alan Underwood, tailback; Pat McNaughton or John Payne, fullback; Joe Smith, wingback.

right tackle; Rock Davis, Tiger end; Dale Imler, standup end; Joe Smith, Tiger man; Alan Underwood, 5-yard halfback; Brent Mancini, strong safety; John Ankrom, middle safety.

Fans will be treated to a special halftime show when the Circleville marching band presents Ohio's first all-electric band performance.

'Cradle Of Coaches' Miami Adds Bill Mallory To List

OXFORD, Ohio (AP) — Add another name to Miami of Ohio's endless list as the nation's "Cradle of Coaches": Bill Mallory.

The 38-year-old coach of "the other Miami" is the latest product this school of 13,000 has become famed for: successful coaches.

Mallory, who has directed the Redskins to four consecutive 7-3 seasons, has the Mid-American Conference club off to one of its fastest starts in history.

Miami is unbeaten in five games and nationally ranked in the The Associated Press poll even though it is one of the smallest major colleges among the Top 20. Miami has gained notice at the expense of two big schools—Purdue and South Carolina.

Mallory has made believes—not an easy challenge considering the continuous act he's had to follow.

He succeeded Glen Schembechler, who left Miami in 1969 to direct the University of Michigan to two Big 10 titles, a pair of Rose Bowl appearances and a 43-6 record.

Before Schembechler it was John Pont, who won 43 of 65 games in seven years at Miami and went on to take sophomore-dominated Indiana to the Rose Bowl in 1967.

The list goes on: Ara Parseghian of Notre Dame, Woody Hayes of Ohio State, Sid Gillman of the Houston Oilers, Paul Brown of the Cincinnati Bengals, Weeb Ewbank of the New York Jets, Carmen Cozza of Yale, Paul Dietzel of South Carolina and Earl "Red" Blaik of Army fame.

Secretariat Sets Final Appearance

NEW YORK (AP) — Secretariat will end his racing career in Canada just like Man O'War did more than 50 years ago.

Secretariat, known to his fans as "Super Red," will make his farewell appearance Oct. 28 in the Canadian Championship at Woodbine in Toronto, trainer Lucien Laurin said Wednesday.

In 1920, Man o'War, thoroughbred racing's legendary "Big Red," beat Sir Barton in a match race at Kenilworth in Windsor, Ont., in his last start.

Terms of a record $6.08 million syndication, call for Secretariat to retire from racing no later than Nov. 15 and go to stud. Riva Ridge will go to stud under a $5 million syndication.

The day before Secretariat closes out his brilliant two-year career, his stablemate, Riva Ridge, will race for the last time in the Jockey Club Gold Cup at Aqueduct, Laurin said.

The 1 5-8 mile Canadian Championship will be Secretariat's second race on the grass. In his debut on the turf, in his last start, the Triple Crown winner turned in a sensational victory in the 1 1/2-mile Man o'War Stakes at Belmont Park.

Browns Linebacker Billy Andrews Out

CLEVELAND (AP)—Cleveland Browns linebacker Billy Andrews is out of action indefinitely with a herniated disc, a team spokesman says.

Andrews, who has seen a fair amount of action despite back problems of a few months' duration, will undergo further tests, the spokesman said Wednesday.

Terry Jones of Cleveland, William Jones of West Hempstead, N.Y., and Willie Jones of Memphis are playing on Indiana's varsity football team.

Browns Seek To Revive Offense

CLEVELAND (AP)—The Cleveland Browns hope to move their sputtering offense into high gear Sunday against the winless Houston Oilers, but the hand on the shift lever is attached to the arm of quarterback Mike Phipps.

The Cleveland team's lack of offense was blamed for their 17-9 loss Monday night to the Miami Dolphins. All of the Browns' points came on Don Cockroft field goals.

Phipps' passing has been less than sparkling in the early season, and the Browns' passing attack is No. 11 in the American Football Conference so far. Only Baltimore and Buffalo, which so far hasn't needed to pass, rank behind Cleveland.

But the sturdy, former Purdue University star demonstrated his passing ability last year, his first as a starter for the Browns. And Coach Nick Skorich says he is confident things will change.

"There is no reason that our passing shouldn't be much better," Skorich said.

"We had a special meeting of the quarterbacks, receivers and running backs," he said. "I took charge of that one myself, and we went over Monday night's game."

Don McCune Leads In Bowling Prizes

AKRON, Ohio (AP)—Don McCune and Barry Asher remain well out in front in the Professional Bowlers Association money ranks, but four others are bunched within about $1,500 of each other well below the top pair.

McCune, of Munster, Ind., finished second in the Regional Champions Classic at Clearwater, Fla., earlier this week, but it was good enough to keep him on top of the money ladder with a total of $65,255. Asher, of Costa Mesa, Calif., had $52,686.

MITCHELL FINDS DEFENSIVE WALL — Florida State's top running back Hodges Mitchell meets the Kansas defensive wall at the line and is stopped for no gain. Kansas linebacker Dean Baird (51) crunches Mitchell into cartwheel in first quarter of Kansas-Florida State game.

However, the Golden Eagles are an improving club and put their first win of the season in the book last week with a 14-8 victory over Greenfield. The Eagles are a big, strong team and like to play ball control football. They will operate from a power I, wing T and slot I with the fullback, Smith, and wingback, Tope, providing the running attack. Defensively, the Eagles will operate from a 5-2 monster with an inside game from the tackles and middle guard. They also may go into 6-2-3 and 6-3-2 with zone pass coverage. Starting on the offensive unit for Madison Plains will be: Oyer, 180-pound, and Stump, 185-pound, at the

right tackle; Rock Davis, Tiger end; Dale Imler, standup end; Joe Smith, Tiger man; Alan Underwood, 5-yard halfback; Brent Mancini, strong safety; John Ankrom, middle safety. Fans will be treated to a special halftime show when the Circleville marching band presents Ohio's first all-electric band performance.

'Cradle Of Coaches' Miami Adds Bill Mallory To List

OXFORD, Ohio (AP) — Add another name to Miami of Ohio's endless list as the nation's "Cradle of Coaches": Bill Mallory. The 38-year-old coach of "the other Miami" is the latest product this school of 13,000 has become famed for: successful coaches. Mallory, who has directed the Redskins to four consecutive 7-3 seasons, has the Mid-American Conference club off to one of its fastest starts in history. Miami is unbeaten in five games and nationally ranked in the The Associated Press poll even though it is one of the smallest major colleges among the Top 20. Miami has gained notice at the expense of two big schools—Purdue and South Carolina.

Mallory has made believes—not an easy challenge considering the continuous act he's had to follow. He succeeded Glen Schembechler, who left Miami in 1969 to direct the University of Michigan to two Big 10 titles, a pair of Rose Bowl appearances and a 43-6 record. Before Schembechler it was John Pont, who won 43 of 65 games in seven years at Miami and went on to take sophomore-dominated Indiana to the Rose Bowl in 1967. The list goes on: Ara Parseghian of Notre Dame, Woody Hayes of Ohio State, Sid Gillman of the Houston Oilers, Paul Brown of the Cincinnati Bengals, Weeb Ewbank of the New York Jets, Carmen Cozza of Yale, Paul Dietzel of South Carolina and Earl "Red" Blaik of Army fame.

Secretariat Sets Final Appearance

NEW YORK (AP) — Secretariat will end his racing career in Canada just like Man O'War did more than 50 years ago. Secretariat, known to his fans as "Super Red," will make his farewell appearance Oct. 28 in the Canadian Championship at Woodbine in Toronto, trainer Lucien Laurin said Wednesday. In 1920, Man o'War, thoroughbred racing's legendary "Big Red," beat Sir Barton in a match race at Kenilworth in Windsor, Ont., in his last start.

Terms of a record $6.08 million syndication, call for Secretariat to retire from racing no later than Nov. 15 and go to stud. Riva Ridge will go to stud under a $5 million syndication. The day before Secretariat closes out his brilliant two-year career, his stablemate, Riva Ridge, will race for the last time in the Jockey Club Gold Cup at Aqueduct, Laurin said. The 1 1/8 mile Canadian Championship will be Secretariat's second race on the grass. In his debut on the turf, in his last start, the Triple Crown winner turned in a sensational victory in the 1 1/2-mile Man o'War Stakes at Belmont Park.

Browns Linebacker Billy Andrews Out

CLEVELAND (AP)—Cleveland Browns linebacker Billy Andrews is out of action indefinitely with a herniated disc, a team spokesman says. Andrews, who has seen a fair amount of action despite back problems of a few months' duration, will undergo further tests, the spokesman said Wednesday. Terry Jones of Cleveland, William Jones of West Hempstead, N.Y., and Willie Jones of Memphis are playing on Indiana's varsity football team.

Browns Seek To Revive Offense

CLEVELAND (AP)—The Cleveland Browns hope to move their sputtering offense into high gear Sunday against the winless Houston Oilers, but the hand on the shift lever is attached to the arm of quarterback Mike Phipps. The Cleveland team's lack of offense was blamed for their 17-9 loss Monday night to the Miami Dolphins. All of the Browns' points came on Don Cockroft field goals.

Phipps' passing has been less than sparkling in the early season, and the Browns' passing attack is No. 11 in the American Football Conference so far. Only Baltimore and Buffalo, which so far hasn't needed to pass, rank behind Cleveland. But the sturdy, former Purdue University star demonstrated his passing ability last year, his first as a starter for the Browns. And Coach Nick Skorich says he is confident things will change. "There is no reason that our passing shouldn't be much better," Skorich said. "We had a special meeting of the quarterbacks, receivers and running backs," he said. "I took charge of that one myself, and we went over Monday night's game."

Don McCune Leads In Bowling Prizes

AKRON, Ohio (AP)—Don McCune and Barry Asher remain well out in front in the Professional Bowlers Association money ranks, but four others are bunched within about $1,500 of each other well below the top pair. McCune, of Munster, Ind., finished second in the Regional Champions Classic at Clearwater, Fla., earlier this week, but it was good enough to keep him on top of the money ladder with a total of $65,255. Asher, of Costa Mesa, Calif., had $52,686.

MITCHELL FINDS DEFENSIVE WALL — Florida State's top running back Hodges Mitchell meets the Kansas defensive wall at the line and is stopped for no gain. Kansas linebacker Dean Baird (51) crunches Mitchell into cartwheel in first quarter of Kansas-Florida State game.

Computer Prep Grid Ratings Released

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Bowling Green, Akron Garfield, Lima Catholic and Ashtabula St. John are new faces this week atop the Ohio High School Athletic Association's computerized football ratings.

Bowling Green and Akron Garfield took over regional leads in Class AAA, Lima Catholic moved to the front in a Class AA region and Ashtabula St. John is a new pacesetter in Class A.

The ratings are compiled by a Columbus firm and are based on the strength of a team's schedule and those of its opponents. Margins of victory are not considered.

The regional leaders automatically qualify for the state playoff semifinals after the regular season is completed.

Keeping their leads again were Warren Western Reserve and Fairborn Baker in Class AAA, Elyria

Staub, Mets Stop A's, 6-1

NEW YORK (AP) — Something finally has taken the play away from the Oakland A's internal battles—Rusty Staub's bat.

The A's, who have grabbed most of the headlines lately with juicy stories of clubhouse unrest, at last took a back seat in the World Series to the New York Mets Wednesday night.

Providing some news of his own, Staub dismissed a painful right shoulder and knocked in five runs to help the Mets beat the A's 6-1 and square the best-of-seven series at two games apiece.

"I did a lot of work during batting practice and did several things to adjust for my sore shoulder," said Staub after hitting a three-run homer and two-run single.

He wouldn't say, but whatever it was that Staub did, it worked wonders.

"Under the circumstances, my performance was unbelievably satisfying," said Staub, who also had two hits and a walk in a 4-for-4 night. "When you've been playing in the big leagues for about 11 years and always wanted to play in a World Series, well, this is a great, great feeling."

Staub's shoulder has been a daily topic since last week, when he hurt it while making a stunning catch in the National League playoffs against the Cincinnati Reds.

He still can't throw well—but, obviously, he can hit. Even if it is to the opposite field.

"I hit a fastball," he said about the clout over the left-center field fence at Shea Stadium off Ken Holtzman in the first inning. "I hit the ball perfectly so that it could carry that way. I knew the wind was gusting out there."

"I thought, though, that it would fall between the fielders. I was kind of surprised when it went over the fence. I was running as hard as I could because I wasn't sure it was out. It was the first ball I've hit out since the shoulder injury—and obviously, the wind helped."

The blast was the beginning of the end for Holtzman, the A's winner in the opening game of the World Series last Saturday. After the 20-game-winning left-hander walked John Milner and gave up a single to Jerry Grote, he took a shower.

Staub's two-run single highlighted a three-run fourth inning that was mere icing for young Jon Matlack's first World Series victory.

The power-throwing left-hander limited the A's to merely one unearned run and three hits before leaving with a stiff shoulder after eight innings.

"I learned a little about the A's in the first game and used it to my advantage tonight," said Matlack, the losing pitcher in game No. 1.

Matlack considered Wednesday night's assignment more important than the opener last Saturday in Oakland "because we were down two games to one Wednesday night and would have been just about out of it with a loss."

He encountered rough going in only one inning—the fourth, when the A's scored their only run with the help of a New York error.

After Joe Rudi struck out, Sal Bando reached first on Wayne Garrett's boot and went to third on a single by Reggie Jackson. Then Bando came home as Gene Tenace bounced out to short.

Matlack, last year's Rookie of the Year in the National League, couldn't finish, though. His arm stiffened and he had to watch the ninth inning from the bench.

"My shoulder was really tight out there," said Matlack. "It impaired my throwing. It took something off my fastball because I couldn't come around over the top—I had to throw three-quarter arm."

Ray Sadecki pitched the ninth, but gave New York Manager Yogi Berra some anxious moments before nailing it down. He loaded the bases with two out before striking out Bert Campaneris as most of the paid 54,817 fans roared their approval.

One of the few who wasn't roaring was sitting near the Oakland dugout—A's owner Charles O. Finley. For a change, he wasn't the center of attention.

Finley had started a cause celebre earlier in this Series by "firing" Mike Andrews for making two costly errors in Sunday's 10-7 loss to the Mets in Oakland.

Although Andrews was back in uniform Wednesday night after Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn ordered him reinstated, the A's were still smoldering with unrest. Oakland Manager Dick Williams was so fed up with the situation that he reportedly decided to quit his job after this World

Series.

Andrews made his first appearance since Sunday, in a pinch-hitting role, and grounded out in the eighth inning. He received a standing ovation from the sympathetic fans when he stepped to the plate and a hefty reaction after he went out.

"It was great—just great," Andrews said about the crowd's hurrahs. "I

Salt Walther, Fengler Have Words

DAYTON, Ohio (AP)—The death-marred Indianapolis 500-mile race is nearly five months into history but the controversy lingers on.

Driver Salt Walther, who was severely burned during a first-lap crash and spent weeks in the University of Michigan Burn Center at Ann Arbor, got into a verbal tangle Wednesday with Harlan Fengler, chief steward at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway.

"I felt I got hit," Walther said during a showing of a film of the 500 at a meeting here of the Society of Automotive Engineers, car owners and drivers. The Dayton driver said he remained conscious after his racer slammed into the wall.

His comments were cut off at that point by Fengler, who asked the projectionist to turn up the sound.

Afterwards, Walther asked Fengler why the drivers were not ordered to follow the pace car around the track for an extra lap, to get everyone back into position. He noted there were five cars in his row.

Fengler responded that the leaders already were past the starting line and there was room for another car in his row. He also noted no one had protested the incident in which Walther was injured.

The young driver replied that if he don't think I've every had cheers like that before. I should have acknowledged it, I guess, but I had only thought when I went up to bat and that was to get a hit."

The series continues tonight in football-like weather as New York's could have walked, he would have personally protested.

After Walther left, Fengler had the last word by noting that a driver does not have to protest in person and that Walther's crew chief could have made the protest.

In addition to Walther's crash, accidents took the lives of driver Swede Savage and crewman Armando Teran during the race and driver Art Pollard during practice.

Staub, Mets Stop A's, 6-1

NEW YORK (AP) — Something finally has taken the play away from the Oakland A's internal battles—Rusty Staub's bat.

The A's, who have grabbed most of the headlines lately with juicy stories of clubhouse unrest, at last took a back seat in the World Series to the New York Mets Wednesday night.

Providing some news of his own, Staub dismissed a painful right shoulder and knocked in five runs to help the Mets beat the A's 6-1 and square the best-of-seven series at two games apiece.

"I did a lot of work during batting practice and did several things to adjust for my sore shoulder," said Staub after hitting a three-run homer and two-run single.

He wouldn't say, but whatever it was that Staub did, it worked wonders.

"Under the circumstances, my performance was unbelievably satisfying," said Staub, who also had two hits and a walk in a 4-for-4 night. "When you've been playing in the big leagues for about 11 years and always wanted to play in a World Series, well, this is a great, great feeling."

Staub's shoulder has been a daily topic since last week, when he hurt it while making a stunning catch in the National League playoffs against the Cincinnati Reds.

He still can't throw well—but, obviously, he can hit. Even if it is to the opposite field.

"I hit a fastball," he said about the clout over the left-center field fence at Shea Stadium off Ken Holtzman in the first inning. "I hit the ball perfectly so that it could carry that way. I knew the wind was gusting out there."

"I thought, though, that it would fall between the fielders. I was kind of surprised when it went over the fence. I was running as hard as I could because I wasn't sure it was out. It was the first ball I've hit out since the shoulder injury—and obviously, the wind helped."

The blast was the beginning of the end for Holtzman, the A's winner in the opening game of the World Series last Saturday. After the 20-game-winning left-hander walked John Milner and gave up a single to Jerry Grote, he took a shower.

Staub's two-run single highlighted a three-run fourth inning that was mere icing for young Jon Matlack's first World Series victory.

The power-throwing left-hander limited the A's to merely one unearned run and three hits before leaving with a stiff shoulder after eight innings.

"I learned a little about the A's in the first game and used it to my advantage tonight," said Matlack, the losing pitcher in game No. 1.

Matlack considered Wednesday night's assignment more important than the opener last Saturday in Oakland "because we were down two games to one Wednesday night and would have been just about out of it with a loss."

He encountered rough going in only one inning—the fourth, when the A's scored their only run with the help of a New York error.

After Joe Rudi struck out, Sal Bando reached first on Wayne Garrett's boot and went to third on a single by Reggie Jackson. Then Bando came home as Gene Tenace bounced out to short.

Matlack, last year's Rookie of the Year in the National League, couldn't finish, though. His arm stiffened and he had to watch the ninth inning from the bench.

"My shoulder was really tight out there," said Matlack. "It impaired my throwing. It took something off my fastball because I couldn't come around over the top—I had to throw three-quarter arm."

Ray Sadecki pitched the ninth, but gave New York Manager Yogi Berra some anxious moments before nailing it down. He loaded the bases with two out before striking out Bert Campaneris as most of the paid $4,817 fans roared their approval.

One of the few who wasn't roaring was sitting near the Oakland dugout—A's owner Charles O. Finley. For a change, he wasn't the center of attention.

Finley had started a cause celebre earlier in this Series by "firing" Mike Andrews for making two costly errors in Sunday's 10-7 loss to the Mets in Oakland.

Although Andrews was back in uniform Wednesday night after Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn ordered him reinstated, the A's were still smoldering with unrest. Oakland Manager Dick Williams was so fed up with the situation that he reportedly decided to quit his job after this World

Series.

Andrews made his first appearance since Sunday, in a pinch-hitting role, and grounded out in the eighth inning. He received a standing ovation from the sympathetic fans when he stepped to the plate and a hefty reaction after he went out.

"It was great—just great," Andrews said about the crowd's hurrahs. "I

Salt Walther, Fengler Have Words

DAYTON, Ohio (AP)—The death-marred Indianapolis 500-mile race is nearly five months into history but the controversy lingers on.

Driver Salt Walther, who was severely burned during a first-lap crash and spent weeks in the University of Michigan Burn Center at Ann Arbor, got into a verbal tangle Wednesday with Harlan Fengler, chief steward at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway.

"I felt I got hit," Walther said during a showing of a film of the 500 at a meeting here of the Society of Automotive Engineers, car owners and drivers. The Dayton driver said he remained conscious after his racer slammed into the wall.

His comments were cut off at that point by Fengler, who asked the projectionist to turn up the sound.

Afterwards, Walther asked Fengler why the drivers were not ordered to follow the pace car around the track for an extra lap, to get everyone back into position. He noted there were five cars in his row.

Fengler responded that the leaders already were past the starting line and there was room for another car in his row. He also noted no one had protested the incident in which Walther was injured.

The young driver replied that if he couldn't think I've every had cheers like that before. I should have acknowledged it, I guess, but I had only thought when I went up to bat and that was to get a hit."

The series continues tonight in football-like weather as New York's Jerry Koosman faces Oakland's Vida Blue in another duel of left-handers.

could have walked, he would have personally protested.

After Walther left, Fengler had the last word by noting that a driver does not have to protest in person and that Walther's crew chief could have made the protest.

In addition to Walther's crash, accidents took the lives of driver Swede Savage and crewman Armando Teran during the race and driver Art Pollard during practice.

Views On Television

NEW YORK (AP) — ABC-TV's documentaries in past years have been largely on the soft side, lacking hard questions and strong impact. This season, the network vows to reverse that tradition.

It's off to a good start tonight with a fine, well-documented study of coal mine safety — and lack of it — both above and below the scarred soil of West Virginia. Entitled "West Virginia — Life, Liberty and the Pursuit of Coal," its primary virtue isn't really the now familiar recitation of mining-related disasters in that state.

It's rather the show's patient examination of the failure both by the state and Washington to vigorously enforce the laws, even the weakest ones, that aim at preventing those disasters. The key words are "vigorous enforcement" and the thrust of tonight's show is that few officials care to know what vigor means. Much of the program checks on the impact in officialdom of last year's failure, during heavy winter rains, of a coal refuse dam owned by a subsidiary of Pittston Coal Co.

The failure was major, releasing flood waters that swept through a hollow at Buffalo Creek, W.Va., killing 125 persons there. Two months after the disaster, the state's Gov. Arch Moore asked the state legislature for $200,000 to "drain and inspect every water impoundment of similar nature and structure."

The action was meant to avert future tragedies like this one. But ABC finds, 15 months after Moore's request, that a number of similar dams, created by coal mining operations, still exist. It proves its point superbly by filming five such dams by helicopter, pinpointing their locations, naming the companies owning them, and showing the films to an Army Corps of Engineers expert.

The expert, Garth Fuquay, who testified at a Senate probe into the cause of the Buffalo Creek disaster, understates his opinion of what the films show by saying the dams "do not appear to me to be the epitome of safety."

It's a bit chilling, particularly when you realize that more than 13,000 persons live downstream from those five dams — and that the state official responsible for supervising such dams can't say if any of them would hold in very heavy rains.

There's a lot more in ABC's story tonight and you should watch it all. You may be dismayed by what you see, but it won't bore you. It's a well paced blend of hard facts and good photography.

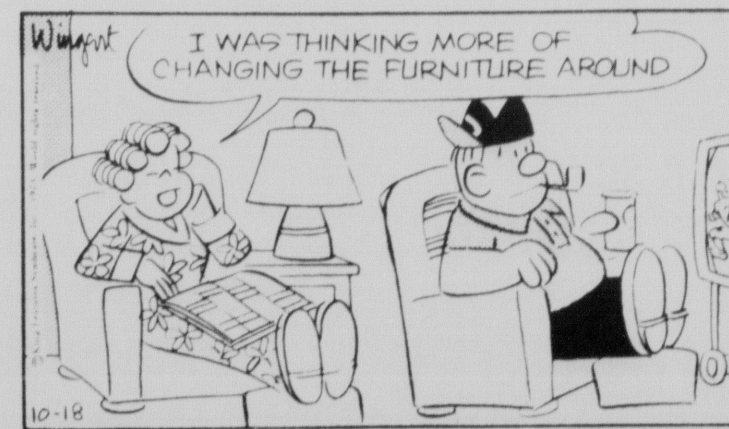

The documentary — ABC plans a total of 12 this season — has a few minor faults. But it still is real proof the network finally is trying to compete with CBS and NBC in strong, effective journalism in prime evening time.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Find the right way to have a better understanding with debtors and creditors. Show that you are willing to cooperate.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) You understand views of associates now and can cooperate with them for mutual gain. Civic work can build up your prestige.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Improve the appearance of your surroundings with the aid of those around you. Try to make a better impression on others.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one of those fascinating young people with much vision and future plans for success. Be sure to plan an education that is above the norm for best results. A government connection could be ideal. Teach to be a good sport. "The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

Views On Television

NEW YORK (AP) — ABC-TV's documentaries in past years have been largely on the soft side, lacking hard questions and strong impact. This season, the network vows to reverse that tradition.

It's off to a good start tonight with a fine, well-documented study of coal mine safety — and lack of it — both above and below the scarred soil of West Virginia.

Entitled "West Virginia — Life, Liberty and the Pursuit of Coal," its primary virtue isn't really the now familiar recitation of mining-related disasters in that state.

It's rather the show's patient examination of the failure both by the state and Washington to vigorously enforce the laws, even the weakest ones, that aim at preventing those disasters.

The key words are "vigorous enforcement" and the thrust of tonight's show is that few officials care to know what vigor means.

Much of the program checks on the impact in officialdom of last year's failure, during heavy winter rains, of a coal refuse dam owned by a subsidiary of Pittston Coal Co.

The failure was major, releasing flood waters that swept through a hollow at Buffalo Creek, W.Va., killing 125 persons there.

Two months after the disaster, the state's Gov. Arch Moore asked the state legislature for $200,000 to "drain and inspect every water impoundment of similar nature and structure."

The action was meant to avert future tragedies like this one. But ABC finds, 15 months after Moore's request, that a number of similar dams, created by coal mining operations, still exist.

It proves its point superbly by filming five such dams by helicopter, pinpointing their locations, naming the companies owning them, and showing the films to an Army Corps of Engineers expert.

The expert, Garth Fuquay, who testified at a Senate probe into the cause of the Buffalo Creek disaster, understates his opinion of what the films show by saying the dams "do not appear to me to be the epitome of safety."

It's a bit chilling, particularly when you realize that more than 13,000 persons live downstream from those five dams — and that the state official responsible for supervising such dams can't say if any of them would hold in very heavy rains.

There's a lot more in ABC's story tonight and you should watch it all. You may be dismayed by what you see, but it won't bore you. It's a well paced blend of hard facts and good photography.

The documentary — ABC plans a total of 12 this season — has a few minor faults. But it still is real proof the network finally is trying to compete with CBS and NBC in strong, effective journalism in prime evening time.

Dear Abby:

By Abigail Van Buren

Forgive And Forget

DEAR ABBY: My wife and I are both 53. We have three married, college-educated children any parents would be glad to claim.

My wife and I married very young. (Shotgun wedding.) We are well off and respected in the community, but here's the problem:

My wife never worked outside the home. She spent all her time raising her children, and she did a fine job. About six years ago I caught her and the insurance man kissing in our kitchen. She swore it would never happen again. Two years later I caught this same man kissing her in the parking lot at a V.F.W. party. Again she swore she would never see him again. Last summer I caught them again. This time there was a big fight, and she confessed they had been seeing each other for six years, three afternoons a week!

She doesn't want a divorce, and this man (also married) doesn't want one either. I don't really want one.

Do I love her? No! I could walk away from her and never look back, but I'm too old to start over.

How do other men who have been in this boat handle a situation like this? NO NAMES, PLEASE

DEAR NO: How other men handle such a situation may be of no help to you. You need to decide how YOU want to handle it. Talk it over with your wife. It will take a lot of forgiving and forgetting, and forgetting what you forgave to keep your marriage intact. You say you are too "old" to start over! Plenty of men would give a lot to be 53 again. Life is short. Make it sweet.

DEAR ABBY: Since our second child was born, our 3-year-old daughter has been helping me immensely by answering the phone when I am busy. She speaks quite clearly, and answers the phone with, "Hi, my mommy is busy with the baby, but she is coming now."

Some people hang up as soon as they realize a small child has answered. Our daughter is so proud that she can help Mommy in this way. It takes only a few moments to listen to her, and makes her so happy.

Maybe your printing this letter will make some people more tolerant of a small child who answers the phone.

BUSY YOUNG MOTHER DEAR MOTHER: Maybe. But maybe not. Youngsters answering the phone is the pet peeve of a surprising number of adults.

DEAR ABBY: I'm not sure whether I have a problem. Here's the situation: I'm 26 and my wife, Diane, is 22. We got back from our honeymoon last week and are living temporarily with Diane's parents and her sister, who is 21.

Our first night back, Diane was about to leave our room to take a shower when I noticed she had nothing on at all. When I reminded her that her father was in the house she gave me a puzzled look and left the room, naked. That was nothing. Since then she often goes around the house with very little on. She even irons clothes in the kitchen in her bra and panties. Yesterday I came home and found her sitting on the floor watching TV completely naked while her sister was setting her hair. Her sister always wears a little something, but not much. Their father was in the next room reading the paper.

Last night when I spoke to her about it she said that's the way she was brought up. I let it drop and decided to write to you.

Abby, I have no sisters so I don't know how girls normally act in front of their fathers. Are my wife and her sister typical? If I'm the one who's out of line please tell me, and I'll keep quiet.

PUZZLED

DEAR PUZZLED: In some homes, nudity is accepted casually, but they are the exceptions-not the rule.

Gilligan Backs Issue No. 1

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Gov. John J. Gilligan gave his endorsement today to a Nov. 6 ballot proposal that would allow the taxation of Ohio farmlands on the basis of agricultural use rather than market value.

Gilligan told a news conference that with urban and suburban areas in Ohio growing at "a tremendous rate, many small farmers find themselves in trouble . . . the demand for the land causes its market value to increase dramatically . . . and under present Ohio law, land must be valued at its potential market value."

The governor said that if voters approved the proposal, which will appear on the ballot as Issue No. 1, "many family farmers now facing unbearable tax burdens will be able to stay on and farm their land."

Gilligan said he will take a public position later on the other three issues that will be on the November ballot. But in response to a specific question, he said he will endorse the constitutional amendment that would authorize a bonus of up to $500 to Ohio veterans of the Vietnam war.

Agency Closing; Winter Snows Just Too Much

TROY TOWNSHIP, Ohio (AP)—A juvenile delinquent treatment agency operating out of an old motel building here will close Saturday rather than undergo another winter in Ohio's snow belt.

"There's just too much snow in Geauga County," said Dr. George A. Golias, head of the Center for Chagrin Valley Services. "Last winter we had three feet of snow out here. We couldn't get in or out."

He said finances also were a factor in the shutdown, but he said he was negotiating with Kent State University in hopes of relocating on the KSU campus.

The federally funded center accepted problem youths recommended by judges from Ashtabula, Geauga, Lake, Portage and Trumbull counties.

blooms — 1. Vickie Uhrig, 2. Alma McKenzie.
